

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to novel piperidine ether derivatives having affinity for the histamine H3 receptor processes for their preparation, to compositions containing them and to their use in the treatment of neurological and psychiatric disorders.